Argued That to Distribute Fund Over Various States Would Be Futile.

Washington, November 14.—President Taft to-day was strongly urged to direct the expenditure of, $500,000, recently appropriated by Congress, on the construction of a great experimental road from Alexandria, Va., to Mount Vernon, the tomb of Washington. The request was made by Senator Martin and Representative Carlin, of Virginia, who told the President of the appropriation by Congress, and declared that not only would the con-

tor Martin and Representative Carini, of Virginia, who told the President of the appropriation by Congress, and declared that not only would the construction of this road meet all the requirements of the law, but would gratify the country as a whole.

Congress appropriated for an experimental postal road, with the object of encouraging the movement for good roads. Senator Martin had understood that the appropriation was to be divided into small sums for each State, and that the Department of Agriculture, which will handle the appropriation, contemplated taking many small bites at the cherry.

The Virginia Senator and Representative pointed out that the numerous experiments would accomplish little, in their opinion, and would be far re-experiments would accomplish little, in their opinion, and would be far removed from the eye of the officials in Washington, who would be most deeply concerned in the experiment. They suggested that if the money were spent in one block in building a road to Mount Vernon the country would be pleased, and the movement for good roads would be helped much more than if the piecemeal plan were adopted. The President is understood to have
